

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

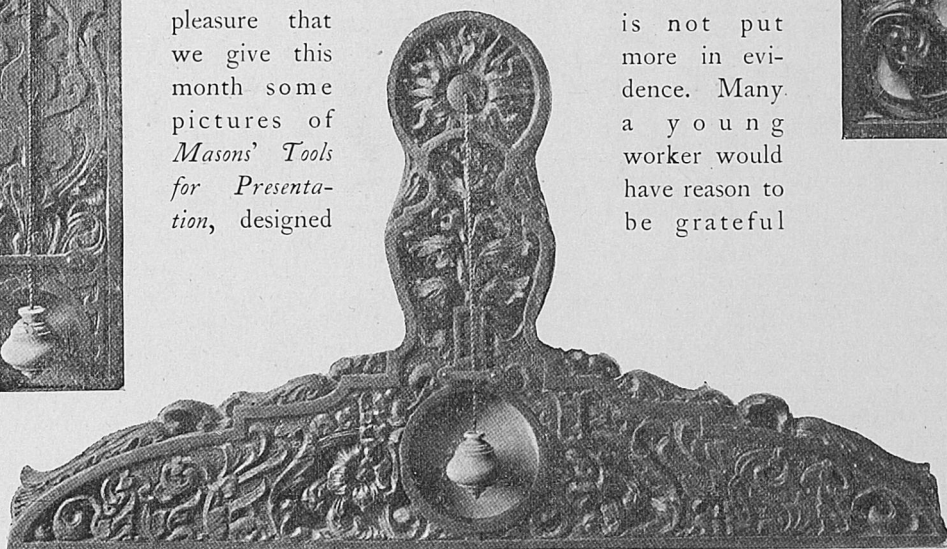

OUR SCHOOLS OF ART

SHEFFIELD

It is with sincere pleasure that we give this month some pictures of Masons' Tools for Presentation, designed done in our Art Schools is not put more in evidence. Many a young worker would have reason to be grateful by J. T. Cook, of the Sheffield School of Art. This school is one of the most enterprising in the country, and we could wish that this lead would be followed by others. It always seems to be a pity that work when thrown upon his own resources in the battle of life (which is not easy) for recognition of the work he did in student days; and we shall be only too pleased to welcome and publish such designs when sent.

